the new grocery store is on the open lot next to the old grocery store. the store is made of cast-in-place concrete with an outer wall of fiber-reinforced concrete. the clean and polished look of the concrete creates the perfect slate for a "gallery" to display the food. the most attractive food, the fresh produce, is displayed in the front of the store. it is visible from the outside of the store to draw customers in, and once in is the first thing a customer sees.
