

Performing Arts Center

Location: 5th and W Market Designer: Aaron Nohrenberg

This performing art center uses solar tubes to collect and store energy for use during peak hours of operation. What is unique about these tubes is that they are not only used for powering the structure but have also been applied as the main design feature, being clad along the entire exterior facade of the building.

REPIONEERING

