

Albion School Addition

Performing Arts Venue

Upon visiting the school in Albion, a need to create a performance space for the school. The main driving forces were to create a performance wing within the school bringing the chorus and band spaces near the performance auditorium. Also to attach to the school and to reduce the volume of the addition by placing it underground was another driving force. Incorporating the idea of not only an indoor performance space but creating an outdoor space to be used by the school as well as for performance purposes was an important aspect of the design. Overall the design reorganizes interior spaces of the school to create a performing wing of the school as well as creating a separate venue to attract larger scale performances for the town and surrounding communities, creating revenue and bringing people to the town of Albion, Nebraska.
